Newsletter 6

November 2026

Greetings from the WeGenerate Project Team!

As our work towards more inclusive and sustainable neighbourhoods continues, new ideas are taking shape and local initiatives are bringing change closer to communities. In this sixth edition, we look at the people, places and collaborative efforts driving urban regeneration forward, with stories and updates from across the WeGenerate partnership.

IN THIS ISSUE

Inside the Cities: Deputy Mayor Luís Almeida Capão shares Cascais' approach to people-centred urban regeneration, highlighting the city's priorities and ambitions for more sustainable and inclusive neighbourhoods.

Behind the Scenes: The WeGenerate Project Manager in Bucharest, offers a glimpse into the work behind the project's implementation and the efforts to turn regeneration plans into action.

Voices from the Community: Discover how the people of Tampere are helping shape their city's future, bringing everyday perspectives and experiences into the conversation about more accessible and inclusive urban spaces.

What Else We've Been Up To: From the launch of Cascais' Energy Community to new policy papers, international events and consortium meetings, catch up on the latest WeGenerate activities and achievements.

VOICES OF THE COMMUNITY

What makes a city comfortable, accessible and welcoming for everyone? Sometimes, the best answers come from looking at familiar places through different eyes. In Tampere, everyday experiences and personal perspectives are helping bring new ideas for the city's future into focus, reminding us that inclusive urban regeneration starts with listening to the people who live there.

WHAT ELSE WE'VE BEEN UP TO

Energising Futures: Advancing an Inclusive Energy Transition

WeGenerate's second policy paper explores how urban regeneration can help deliver a more inclusive and accessible energy transition. It offers recommendations for cities and local stakeholders seeking to address energy challenges while ensuring that communities can participate in and benefit from the transition.
